

ABSTRACT

A system and method for merit-based software licensing comprises determining a quality value for a target software based on the target software's performance and computing a licensing fee based on the quality value.